

Thursday 9th June: 'The Great Royal Bake Off'.

A competition is to be held for the most amazing cake or buns which families have made together on a royal theme (get out the red, white and blue food colouring and you're away). Children and adults must have worked together on their creations to qualify. Bring your cakes to school in the morning and in the afternoon there will be the grand judging with the judges looking at both taste and decoration. Let your imagination be carried away with crowns and corgis! There will be prizes for the winners. All the cakes and buns will then be used for the children the next day when we have our....

Friday, 10th June: Right Royal Picnic

ALL the children in school will be going onto the moor for a picnic lunch. Kate, the cook, is going to make grab bag picnics for those children who have school dinners and those children who like to bring their own packed lunch can. The cakes that were entered for the 'Great Royal Bake Off' will also be enjoyed. We don't want to say too much but.....there may well be a very, very special visitor arriving at the picnic. It's all very royal hush hush.

Friday, 10th June: Wear red, white and blue

Let's make school a blaze of royal colours. Children can come to school in any clothes they wish providing they are red, white or blue or a combination of all three.

More details about our exciting events after the holiday but it might be a good holiday activity to get your cake/ buns sorted, especially if it's a wet afternoon. And how about learning the words to the national anthem which we will all be singing? Have fun!
